

Beck Depression Inventory (BDI)

Information & Questionnaire

About the Beck Depression Inventory (BDI)

The Beck Depression Inventory is a 21-item multiple-choice self-report tool used to gauge the severity of depressive symptoms in adolescents and adults. The BDI is not a diagnostic instrument; it is a screening and symptom-severity measure that helps identify the presence and intensity of depressive symptoms. It does not provide a specific diagnosis of a depressive disorder.

Please consult your GP or a mental health professional to determine a diagnosis and appropriate care. If your score suggests borderline or clinically significant depression and your symptoms are causing distress or impairing your functioning at work/academic, social, or family life, please seek professional support.

Important

The BDI is a screening and severity measure only and should not be used as a stand-alone diagnostic tool. If your symptoms cause significant distress or impair daily functioning, please consult your GP or a mental health professional. In an emergency, contact local emergency services or crisis helplines.

How to Use This Questionnaire

How to use this questionnaire

You will see groups of statements. For each group, select the one statement that best describes how you have been feeling. The questionnaire uses a 0–3 scale to reflect increasing symptom severity. Complete every item and then add up your scores to obtain a total. Higher totals reflect greater levels of depressive symptoms. Interpretation ranges may vary by version; discuss results with a clinician.

Scoring (overview)

Sum the item scores (0–3) across all questions to get a total score. Do not skip items. For interpretation and follow-up, consult the scoring guide on the questionnaire or your clinician.

INTERPRETING THE BECK DEPRESSION INVENTORY

Now that you have completed the questionnaire, add up the score for each of the twenty-one questions by counting the number to the right of each question you marked. The highest possible total for the whole test would be sixty-three. This would mean you circled number three on all twenty-one questions. Since the lowest possible score for each question is zero, the lowest possible score for the test would be zero. This would mean you circles zero on each question. You can evaluate your depression according to the Table below.

Total Score _____ Levels of Depression

1-10 _____	These ups and downs are considered normal
11-16 _____	Mild mood disturbance
17-20 _____	Borderline clinical depression
21-30 _____	Moderate depression
31-40 _____	Severe depression
over 40 _____	Extreme depression
